DRUMMOND HILL

Drummond Hill

An outstanding Victorian manor house with superb character, situated within the expansive grounds of the Drummond Hill estate, in the Highland capital of Inverness, featuring beautifully landscaped gardens, a tree lined avenue and mature woodlands.

The imposing Victorian mansion house was originally constructed in the late 19th Century in 1886 for the local Inverness solicitor William Burns and his wife, where a marriage stone sits above the main entrance door. It is thought the house was designed by the prominent Inverness Architect, Alexander Ross.

The mansion house, together with the original charming gatehouse are Category B listed buildings.

Drummond Hill is an exceptional estate, comprising the sympathetic conversion of the stately home into six unique apartments, retaining the splendour of the property's many period features, including imposing fireplaces, ornate cornicing, oak panelling and the grandeur of the original oak staircase.

Stunning views of Inverness Cathedral overlooking the River Ness from Inverness Castle.

Within a spectacular estate,
Drummond Hill is in a highly desirable
location close to local amenities

Location

Drummond Hill truly offers the best of both worlds. A spectacular leafy suburb, it presents the chance to live in a tranquil and secluded setting, surrounded by rich local history, while benefitting from close proximity to a bustling city centre.

Situated to the south of Inverness City Centre, Drummond Hill is within walking distance of all the city has to offer by way of shopping, leisure and entertainment. This includes a suite of popular cafés, bistros, bars and restaurants lining the River Ness, most notably Michelin star restaurant Rocpool. It has great connectivity, bound by the east and west residential areas, and to the north of the city by the B862 Dores Road.

The surrounding views of the famous Scottish Highlands are outstanding, with acres of native pine trees, cherry trees, open green spaces and public gardens, making it the ideal place to connect with the outdoors.

Within easy reach, residents will find several historical and cultural points of interest including Inverness Castle, St Andrew's Cathedral and an original Victorian Market packed with independent traders who complement the busy high street.

Plenty of play parks, bike parks and golf courses are also nearby, including award-winning championship course, Castle Stuart Golf Links and the highly acclaimed Inverness Golf Club, which opened in 1883.

Drummond Hill offers the opportunity to enjoy the great outdoors.
